Tennis Is Added to Training Methods of the Mavericks

Ball Players Are Given Plenty of Exercise in Chasing Pellets Around the Courts—Hurley Will Endeavor to Banish the Jinx in Series With El Paso Saturday and Sunday.

ENNIS has been added to the list of training methods of the El Paso Mavericks, and the game which recently caused international interest and is now being played in a tournament in Chicago, is a daily workout for the players of the local team. While Tommy Ryan, Harry Gilmore and others of publicity fame, were in El Paso last year they declared that tennis was the best game for all around exercise in the world, and was unequalled as a wind developer. Giff Brann, champion of the Sunset drive station, has Tommy Gowan, Harry Barker, Harley Kiefer and several other players out on the court every morning. As a surety that the players will get plenty of exercise out of the game, Brann hits the ball to one side of the court and then the other, the inexperienced players running their legs off.

Hurley will be here Saturday morning, instead of Friday as intended. When the players arrive Friday afternoon they get a good night's rest before the game Saturday, while when they arrive Saturday, it is necessary to catch the train at 2 a. m. at El Paso. The Mavericks have been putting in a good deal of consistent practice lately and the players are in fine form for the two contests. Gutierrez is a probable selection for the Mavericks, while either Steger, or Bauman will inaugurate the series for the Concentrators.

The management of the Mavericks has not received any late reports from either Gurtz or catcher Robinson, but the supposition is that they are making their way by easy stages to El Paso. The Cotton States schedule recently closed, and it is probable that Robinson may play for a short vacation at his home. Gurtz participated in only two games with the Beaumont team, but made an excellent showing in each game. In the first game he pitched out ten hits, and scored the only run. In the second, while he did not make any hits, his work in the field was perfect.

Secretary Art Woods, of the Copper league, says he has not received the box scores of the games on the western circuit. He has all the batting and fielding averages of the league compiled, with the exception of the four games in the west, which the scorers have neglected to send.

According to reports from Waco, Cliff Hill is ably filling the position left open by the advent of Zola Lohrman into the Coast league. It was Hill's turn to pitch Thursday, but rain prevented the game between the Navigators and the Houston team. The great pitching staff of the Navigators is keeping them in their present berth, only three games behind Dallas for second place, and five behind Houston for the top position.

Clyde Woolen, formerly third baseman for the El Paso team in the Cactus league, will be a spectator of both games between Hurley and El Paso, Saturday and Sunday. Woolen is en route to San Antonio, from California, where he played with Santa Barbara, in the Southern league, at that state.

Hurley has been trailing a jinx for the past three weeks, as that club has lost three successive games. It is considered one of the best teams in New Mexico, although the hitting of the team in general is a bit below the average. Steger and Bauman are in good form. Both pitched airtight games last week, the games going to their opponents. On account of the failure of the Concentrators to hit behind them.

Gutierrez, Pitter and Nellis, of the Mavericks, are all in exceptional trim, and are all hitting and fielding well.

Record Year For Making New Golf Course Figures

THE rolling out of a 295 yard shot by R. P. Allis at the Homewood Country club, Chicago, recently, furnished another reminder that this season has been a great season for new golf records. All over the country courses have been lengthened to provide for the phenomenal drives that are common nowadays, with the newest kinds of balls, yet hardly a week passes without new figures being made. Over 100 courses have been lengthened in the last year, and more in length it is nothing for the amateur records to stand at 70, while for links less than this the club amusement of the crack is to see how many strokes they can go below 70. Matches nowadays are more than ever won and lost on the greens. Putting is the most important factor in the game. Everybody can drive and hit. Some players seem to think that putting plays a too important part in the game. And yet, who would ever have a chance of defeating Travers, Evans, or men like Edward Ray, last year's British open champion, were it not for the game on the greens? They it is easy to get home in two shots at a 500 yard hole. At the North Shore club, Skeggs, recently, Ray, playing with Vardon, started off by taking 3 for the first hole—510 yards. A few days later in a match with the new British champion, J. H. Taylor, Ray hit a pretty tee shot at the sixth hole, driving a green 350 yards distant. Though the Homewood Country club of Flossmoor, Ill., has lengthened its course to nearly 600 yards, Vardon K. Wood turned in a card last week of 72 in a medal play competition. Nearer home, at Fox Hills, where the course is now 6300 yards, it was expected at the opening of the season that the best score would be perhaps 75. At the invitation tournament Travers came along and handed in a 72 in the medal round.

The next day H. V. Gaines equalled this record. Travers finished the week with a 70. Walter J. Travers made a new amateur mark of 69 at Tedesco, a 71 at Caswell, Oswald Kirkby at 73 at Baltusrol and T. V. Birmingham at 75 at Wykavyl, two strokes below the previous amateur record of that course made by Travers.

Parker W. Whittemore scored the equivalent of a new record at the Stockbridge Golf club the second time he played it, equalling the old record of 71, but under more exacting conditions than the previous amateur record of that course made by Travers. First there was his wonderful scoring at Wollaston in the last nine holes against John Anderson, in the state championship; next his amateur mark of 69 at Tedesco, followed by his 68 at Woodland. Now, as his latest performance, there has been a record card from a member of the Crow Point Golf club showing how the Massachusetts amateur has done. He played 69 there and played successive rounds of 69 and 68. Crow Point undeniably has a short course, nine holes measuring 429 yards. Nevertheless, 135 for 26 holes in remarkable golf, as is 68 for a single round, the professional record being two more.

At Deal the other day J. G. Batterton, of Fox Hills, made a new amateur record for the course by going twelve rounds in 74 for a total of 148. Travers will have a hard job to better this on Sunday.

SCOOP THE CUB REPORTER Scoop Gets A Splash of Western Color In His Interview By "Hop"

Puffs From the Fan's Hop Pipe

HENRIE ZIMMERMAN, center fielder of the San Francisco Coast league club, has been given his unconditional release by manager Del Howard. In accounting for the release of Zimmerman, Howard says that his salary was over the limit and it was necessary to let one player go. Walter Schaller, the former White Sox outfielder, made his initial appearance with the Seals Wednesday.

Leach Cross was a 10 to seven favorite over Matty Baldwin in the Vernon bout held Tuesday night. Leach Cross and Matty Baldwin, according to critics, put up the slowest and most uninteresting battle which has been staged at Vernon in several years. Cross had an easy time hitting his opponent. Both boxers were warned for stalling, by referee Eylon, in the 15th.

Joe Cantillon, manager of the Minneapolis American association club, believes that Ralph Comstock, is as good a spitball pitcher as Ed Walsh, of the White Sox, Comstock's work showed poorly at the beginning of the season, and he was released to the Minneapolis Northern league club, he is going in the matchmaking business, against the advice of his physician.

Los Angeles boxing fans are complaining because Tom McCaray passed up Kid Williams in a fight with Campi on account of the $1000 difference that Sammy Harris, manager of Williams, asked. Campi has improved greatly in the last year, while Williams is a great little fighter, making one of the best cards in the country.

Jesse McMahon, a New York fight promoter, is in Chicago waiting the arrival of Ritchie, whom he hopes to sign with Leach Cross. McMahon will guarantee the titleholder $10,000 if he meets Cross. Cross will receive 20 percent of the gross receipts after Ritchie has pulled down $10,000.

Earl Moore, former Phillie Phanther and one time sensation of the National league, has become a Chicago Cub. Moore was recently sold to the St. Louis Cardinals, but refused to join the team. Moore has won only one game this season, but will undoubtedly be given a chance with the Cubs.

Ed Sweeney, the star backstop of the Yankees, came into the airport 20 of his life, in a recent game against the Naps. Sweeney was injected into the game as a substitute, following a general switch, as a result of Midge's disqualification. He hit the ball sign in the left field with a bat, thereby earning a walk. This is the first time the feat has been accomplished at the new Brush stadium.

Washington baseball fans have contributed $1000 to fill a loving cup, already paid for by popular subscription, which will be presented to Walter Johnson, the Senator's star pitcher. The cup will be presented to Johnson on August 2, when he will have completed six years in a Washington uniform.

Efforts are being made to stage a match between Arthur Pelkey and Charley Miller, at Vernon, Louis Parente, manager of Miller, has declared that McCaray would be a sure bet, and they are glad to get first crack at the man who is recognized as the heavyweight champion.

For a fighter who has been knocked out by Arthur Pelkey, Charley Miller has had many opportunities to "make good" than any man in the business. Miller has taken the count from Moir, Pelkey, Smith and Carpenter, in short order each time, but he has always had a chance to come back again. He is a wonderfully clever boxer for a big man, but he lacks the stamina, having a very weak stomach, and he has proved he should be putting his man away by keels over himself from body blows that even a middleweight would stand hard to take. Miller has been the best of them until that one body blow, when he seemed to collapse and then it was all over but the shouting for the other man.

After his knockout by Carpenter, the Bombarrier sought a match in London and was sent against the Irish champion, Paddy Moran, whom he defeated in sixteen rounds. It was no great showing, but it served to bring Wells back into the limelight and now he is being matched again with Carpenter. Should he be lucky enough to turn the tables on the French syndicate, it will bring him right back to the top rung again and he will be a candidate for a match with George Smith.

At Palzer, or still better, Arthur Pelkey, Wells is a great boxer and has a hard wallop, and he has proved on numerous occasions, but that weak stomach spoils all for him. Some of these days the Bombarrier will have his stomach made over or strengthened and then he will be a great fighter.

According to news from Europe, Jack Johnson wants to meet either Bombarrier, Wells, George Carpenter, or Al Pulzer. Now why don't Jack name Sam Longford or Joe Jeannette? I have just received the following letter from London regarding the matter: "Johnson is here again and with his usual effrontery. He boldly announces that he wants $20,000 to meet one of the big stars, naming Wells, Carpenter and Pulzer. Why, that is a joke. All that talk about big sums for a match is pure bunk. It is also reported that he will remain here as the laws of extradition are very complicated. He may reside in Paris permanently."

I do not know what the French club will do, but it is almost certain that Johnson will not be permitted to box in England. If the big fellow was to take on Longford there might be many so to Paris to see the match, but not the other easy ones."

Willie Ritchie has deposited $5000 with Tom McCaray as a surety of his intention to "take" Ad Wolgast's $25,000 as a side bet, for their fight. The bet will be $12,500 that Wolgast knocks Ritchie out, and $12,500 that he wins the decision over the San Franciscoan.
